

Why has the FCAI CLINICAL moved online?

Current restrictions on gatherings and overseas travel may prevent us from running our FCAI Clinical exam in Ireland and our overseas centres for some time to come. Conducting our exams online with online invigilation or proctoring will prevent further cancellations and allows us to deliver the FCAI Clinical examination for our trainees and overseas exam candidates.

Is the exam style changing?

Yes, as the exam will be delivered online, the exam style will change to facilitate this.

The FCAI Clinical examination will be an online written exam, which will be made up of CRQ's (Constructed Response Questions), and VSAQ's (Very Short Answer Questions). These questions may also include video and audio media.

The questions will focus on candidate's ability to demonstrate a what/when/how approach.

The SOE component of the exam will also become an online written exam and will also consist of CRQ's (Constructed Response Questions) and VSAQ's (Very Short Answer Questions).

How many questions are in the written clinical case?

There will be many subparts totalling 80 marks

What will be the timing of the Final Clinical exam?

The Clinical exam will be 60 minutes. There will be a break of 60 minutes and following this the SOE exam begins. The SOE exam will contain 10 questions and will last 180 minutes.

What are CRQ's?

CRQ's are open-ended short answer questions with precise answer templates, which are most commonly used to measure knowledge, reasoning and application level cognitive skills. Your exam may include real world artefacts such as graphs, images, cases, scenarios. The sub sections of the question increase in difficulty and complexity as you progress through your question.

What are VSAQ's?

VSAQ's consist of a clinical vignette followed by a question (usually about a diagnosis or management) which candidates should be able to generate a short response. Candidates need to be able to demonstrate their knowledge.

Do I need extra documentation to sit a remote exam?

Yes. In preparation for our exams being administered online and being proctored/invigilated online, successful applicants must sign an Honour Pledge and a GDPR consent form.

Where can I get these forms?

These can be downloaded at the bottom of this page.

How/When can I trial the system before exam day?

One week before the exam, candidates are required to complete a trial exam. At this stage candidates will get the opportunity to test that their intended device is compatible and be given some sample questions to answer to familiarise themselves with the system.

What is online invigilation or proctoring?

Online remote invigilation essentially recreates the exam hall experience online. Candidates sit the test online at a place of their choosing, such as the home or workplace, using their own hardware. Although some candidates may find the idea of being watched by a proctor unusual, the proctor is not visible to candidates. The Company behind the system have been carefully selected by the College as the provider for these examinations.

Who do I contact if I have technical issues on the test day?

For any issues that arise on the exam day, the ProctorExam system provides a live chat support facility. The exams teams will also be contactable at exams@coa.ie during your exam for any issues related to questions about the exam paper during the exam (for example, “Question 3 does not make sense, I think the symptom should be X and not Y”).

As the exam is online will I get my results immediately?

No. To ensure the test is fair, question performance is scrutinised by a group of examiners after each exam. Standard setting criteria is applied and the final results are signed off by the Chairperson of Examinations.

As I do not need to attend an exam centre, can I sit the exam on a day of my choice?

Do I have to sit the exam at home? I have children and do not have access to a quiet environment?
